The reference in paragraph 9 of [REDACTED] to the "250,000 employees" on the USIVA payroll is probably erroneous. The first 280 Austrian firms under Soviet control are reported to carry 35,000 employees. Since the remaining one hundred firms are mostly small, it would appear unlikely that the number of Austrian employees in Soviet-controlled firms, plus Russian administrative and overhead personnel, could even approach the cited figure of 250,000.
